IES partners with local creatives to host event during Nashville Design Week
Event during first-ever design week will highlight the printing side of design

NASHVILLE – Nashville’s first-ever Design Week will be held November 8-15 and will fill the city with events to unite the design community, promote collaboration, idea sharing, public engagement and ultimately elevate the impact of Nashville’s strong design community.

IES, a large-format printer in Nashville, has embraced the event as a branding sponsor with hopes of having a very important part in this design conversation. IES will host an event for Nashville’s best and brightest creatives at its headquarters.

The We BELIEVE in DESIGN event will allow IES to share its breadth of knowledge of the large format print and distribution industries, and how crucial print still is in today’s digital marketing world.

“We are so excited to be involved in Nashville’s first Design Week,” said Hadley Williams with IES. “We will show attendees our new printing, kitting, and shipping facilities and demonstrating the cutting-edge printing capabilities we have right here in Nashville. This will be a great opportunity for creatives across all communities to understand the materials and process of print and its distribution.”

The free event will be Monday, Nov. 12 from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. at IES, 337 Hill Ave., Nashville, TN. 37210. Space is limited, so anyone interested should click HERE to register.

“This will be a great, hands-on experience to ask questions about print and the materials behind it,” said Novella Coppedge with IES. “It is so exciting to us to be able to show off our capabilities and see businesses get inspired to grow their own business through our services. People see our work all over town, now they will get to see how and where it is produced.”

The event is open to anyone who has interest in graphic design, marketing or creative fields.

ABOUT IES

IES, formerly Ingram Express Services, was founded in 1995 by Adam Ingram as a shipping and fulfillment company. The company expanded and evolved into large-format printing ranging from special event and retail branding to vehicle wraps and point-of-sale marketing items. If you have been to a mall, arena sporting event or trade show lately, you have seen our work. IES prides itself on being a partner, not just a vendor on your job.
